An education for a more just world.
An Education that Prepares You to Do Well

While Doing Good

With top academic programming, strong humanist principles and a community invested in our students, Creighton University produces legal professionals who are ready to build a more just world. We have a variety of program options plus externships, summer excursions, dual-degree options and concentrations, so you can create a path that fits you.

Our JD Options: Traditional, Accelerated and Part-time

There are three ways to earn your Juris Doctor (JD) degree at Creighton University—pick the one that works best for you.

• Traditional Full-Time JD Program
  Our traditional full-time JD program is three years and begins each fall. Students in this program are not required to take classes in the summer, allowing them to take advantage of experiential learning opportunities in the summer via externships and internships.

• Two-Year Accelerated JD Program
  Creighton’s two-year Accelerated JD (AJD) program allows students to earn their law degree in two years instead of three years. Students in the AJD program take classes in four regular semesters (fall and spring) and two summer sessions.

• Part-Time JD Option
  Students also have an option to attend part time and can earn their JD in four to six years. Students attend classes with full-time students but take a course load that fits their busy lives.

“What I appreciated most about my time here was the unwavering support of the faculty and staff. This had the most positive impact on my law school experience, and I know every other student benefited from the school’s dedication to students’ health, happiness and success.”

—Andrea Snowball, JD’20
Outstanding Faculty
Focused on Your Success

Creighton School of Law faculty members bring years of expertise to the classroom, but their influence doesn’t stop there. They are part of the Creighton community, which will stand behind and beside you throughout your time here. Classes are small and professors’ open-door policies ensure that you get to know them—and they get to know you. They are scholars focused on the full range of legal specialties, and they’re eager to share their expertise, challenge theories or simply chat.

“I chose Creighton Law because I felt comfortable and welcome here. I completed my undergraduate education here and I couldn’t bear to leave such an amazing campus environment.”
–Kristyn Wong, BA’16, JD’20

“Student-faculty interactions add an essential dynamic to the learning environment, and I’m grateful accessibility is part of our culture at Creighton. Students and faculty learn—and grow—together here.”
–R. Collin Mangrum, JD, SJD
Professor, advisor of the litigation program and A.A. and Ethel Yossem Endowed Chair in Legal Ethics

“Faculty availability is so important at Creighton. Our open-door policy invites students in, and we genuinely enjoy getting to know them. Each year, we look forward to meeting the newest members of the Creighton family.”
–Kelly K. Dineen, RN, JD, PhD
Assistant professor and advisor of the health law program
School of Law Curriculum

A student must complete 90 credit hours to graduate. That means an average of 15 credit hours each semester after completing your required first-year curriculum. The number of credit hours is listed below with each class.

FIRST YEAR

Fall Semester

- LAW 100 Introduction to Law (0 credit)
- LAW 103 Civil Procedure I (3 credits)

THIRD YEAR

- LAW 302 Comprehensive Review (3 credits)*

* LAW 302 Comprehensive Review is recommended for all students. It is required for students in the bottom 1/3 of the class.

EXTERNSHIPS

Externsips offer Creighton law students the opportunity to earn credit for unpaid work in the public sector. You’ll earn at least three credit hours and be graded on a satisfactory/unsatisfactory basis.

Visit law.creighton.edu/externships to view our list of externship opportunities—available in Omaha and across the country and world.

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING REQUIRED

Experiential Learning in second or third year (6 credits).

SECOND AND THIRD YEAR ELECTIVES

Select credits needed to reach 90 total credits. No more than 18 of the 90 credits may be in non-classroom hours.
Get to know your professors.

Interaction is common and consistent at Creighton. Thanks to an open-door policy, it's easy to get extra help or just talk with your professors. Building those relationships opens doors to new opportunities and provides the support students need to succeed.

Academic Support

At Creighton Law, our students’ success is our top focus, and we provide several academic support resources to help you thrive, including:

Law School EDGE
EDGE Academic Success has partnered with the law school to provide a legal-focused program to help students make a successful transition from undergraduate to legal studies, including:
- A nine-week seminar that explores effective learning and academic management strategies
- Individual academic support
- Professional academic coaching
- Bar exam preparation
- Assisting with writing and legal analysis

Legal Writing Center
The Legal Writing Center is available to all Creighton law students who want to strengthen their legal writing. The Legal Writing Center is staffed by writing associates, who are third-year students selected through an application and interview process. The Legal Writing Center and its writing associates are supervised by the director of legal writing.

Mentor Program
Every incoming student is assigned both an upper-level student mentor and a faculty advisor. Student mentors guide first-year students through the ins and outs of the life of a law student. Your faculty advisor will assist you with a wide range of topics, including course scheduling and career tips.

Exam Preparation

At Creighton, many first-year law students take midterm exams. Midterm exams are worth a small percentage of a student’s grade and allow students to gauge their progress and understanding of the material before the final exam. All first-year law students may also take part in a seminar on how to take law school exams successfully.

Concentrations

Law students wishing to specialize may pursue an area of emphasis as part of a JD degree. When you focus your education through a concentration option, you can focus on the areas of law you’re most passionate about. By choosing an area of emphasis, you’ll set yourself apart in the competitive job market. At the end of your studies, you’ll do a substantial project, which might involve writing a paper, participating on a trial team, working in our legal clinics or participating in moot court.

Concentrations are offered in the following areas:
- Business, Commercial and Tax Law
- Criminal Law and Procedure
- Energy, Environmental and Sustainability Law
- Family Law
- Health Law
- International and Comparative Law
- Litigation
- Sports Law

Students have the option of earning more than one concentration.
JD/MS in Government Organization and Leadership (GOAL)

Students who participate in GOAL earn two degrees: a JD and a Master of Science (MS) in Government Organization and Leadership (GOAL). The GOAL program will prepare you for leadership positions with government entities and the organizations that work closely with them. You’ll gain an invaluable mix of career-driven legal experience and professional subtleties that can’t be learned from a textbook.

The centerpiece of GOAL is an exciting practicum semester in your third year of law school, living and working in the nation’s capital. The full-time externship experience in Washington, D.C., provides 11 credits toward the GOAL degree. During the externship, you’ll secure five additional credits that may go toward the Juris Doctor degree.

JD/MBA

With a JD from the law school and a Master of Business Administration (MBA) from Creighton’s Heider College of Business, you can bridge your passion for law with your excitement for business. The JD/MBA program allows you to complete both degrees in as little as three years. Benefits of the program include:

- Your Creighton degrees are built on a solid foundation of both law and business
- You’ll learn in small classes, enhancing your ability to interact with professors and peers
- You’ll have practical experiences outside of the classroom through externships and networking opportunities

Enrichment Beyond the Classroom

Creighton University School of Law offers dozens of student organizations, from political and service organizations to student associations for women and those with ethnic and cultural interests. Students can learn more about our organizations at the Student Organization Fair each fall.

Competition Teams
Another great way for law students to get involved is through our competition teams. Creighton law students have the opportunity to participate in a variety of successful competition teams led by expert faculty members that prepare students for the reality of trying cases in front of a courtroom. Students compete in national and regional competitions across the country and can choose from an array of competition teams to be involved with, including:

- American Bar Association (ABA) Law Student Division Arbitration
- ABA Law Student Client Counseling Competition
- Various moot court competitions, including one in Germany
- National Trial Competition
- ABA-sponsored Negotiation Competition
- Trial Advocacy Competition

The Werner Institute
The Werner Institute, a center within Creighton that focuses on dispute resolution, sponsors several student competition teams. Through their support, students compete in regional, national and international competitions that allow students to experience the non-litigation side of law practice.

During school, law students have the opportunity to get involved in a variety of externships and judicial clerkships, thanks to the extensive alumni and legal network Creighton has built over the years.

CURRENT SCHOOL OF LAW STUDENTS

Students come from...

36 states
AND 2 U.S. TERRITORIES

2 countries

23% are students of color

59% from states other than Nebraska
In an increasingly interconnected world, experiencing other cultures and other legal systems is enriching. Through the study abroad programs and service-learning programs at Creighton Law, you'll enrich your legal education—and broaden your worldview—by being immersed in the culture of your host country.

Spain Student Exchange Program
The Creighton Law Student Exchange Program with our sister Jesuit law school in Spain, Universidad Pontifica Comillas de Madrid, gives Creighton students the opportunity to live and learn in Madrid—and to learn alongside Comillas students in their Creighton law classrooms. Students have an opportunity to expand their training in international and comparative law, particularly the laws of Spain and the European Union.

Ronald Volkmer Dominican Republic Immersion Trip
Through the Ronald Volkmer Dominican Republic Immersion Trip, Creighton Law students learn about the Dominican judicial system, participate in service projects, grow in their faith, and experience all aspects of Dominican life, law and culture.

For a full week in early January, about a dozen students and a Creighton law professor travel to the Dominican Republic. During their time, students visit the Supreme Court of the Dominican Republic and take field trips and perform service projects in and around Santiago.

From Nuremberg to The Hague (often referred to as N2H) is Creighton University’s Germany Summer Program. It gives you an opportunity to learn firsthand about international criminals and the Holocaust in Nuremberg, the Bavarian city that hosted the Nazi war crimes trials after the Second World War and is considered the birthplace of modern international criminal law. You’ll spend the month of July in Germany and the Netherlands, studying international law and how traumatic societal events like the Holocaust impact the law. You will also explore the theoretical and practical reaches of major international crimes.

By combining classroom instruction with trips to actual crime scenes, places of conspiracy and current trials, you will be exposed to an unprecedented array of historical and legal experiences. You will also participate as a lawyer, witness or expert in a mock court session that combines teams of American, German and international law students who brief their cases and present arguments at the end of the semester before officials of the International Criminal Court. Oral arguments are held in Old Courtroom Number 600 in the Nuremberg Palace of Justice, where Nazi war leaders were prosecuted after the Second World War.

Requirements
Creighton’s Germany Summer Program is open to law students, as well as graduate students and upper-level undergraduate students.
Creighton University calls Omaha, Nebraska, home. With a population of nearly 1 million people in the metro area, Omaha offers a healthy mix of cosmopolitan sophistication and suburban relaxation. Omaha is home to the headquarters of four Fortune 500 companies. A thriving economic hub for the region, greater Omaha:

- Produces more than $51 billion in goods and services each year
- Has outpaced the national economic growth for the past five years in finance and insurance
- Has a booming information industry, with an 18.3% increase over the last five years

The cost of living in Omaha is 8% lower than the national average. It’s convenient, too. Most everything in the city—including the airport—is a short drive from Creighton’s campus. In fact, Omaha is known for having a commute-to-work time under 20 minutes, lower than the national average.

The CHI Health Center Omaha, home to the NCAA Division I Creighton Bluejays men’s basketball team, also hosts a variety of other entertainment events from major rock concerts to the U.S. Olympic Swim Trials—all conveniently located just a few blocks east of campus. Next door to the CHI Health Center is TD Ameritrade Park, home to the NCAA College World Series, which is also home field for Creighton Bluejay baseball.

Omaha combines big city convenience with a small town feel and has the amenities to fit:

- A thriving food scene supported by some of the nation’s best local produce
- A long list of excellent public and private schools throughout the city
- Three entertainment districts, all within proximity of Creighton
- World-class health care

No matter what you’re looking for, you’ll find it in Omaha.
Expect great things.
The Career Development Office will help you get there.

The Career Development Office (CDO) at Creighton Law is the “go-to” place for students’ career and professional development needs, offering resources for students and alumni.

The CDO works to support students through timely and targeted recruiting services, including:
- On-campus interviewing
- Resume and cover letter review
- The Lawyer Lunch program series, which puts you face-to-face with current practitioners
- An Interviewing Skills Panel, where local hiring attorneys tell you how to stand out

At the CDO, we strive to set the bar in terms of counseling, responsiveness, professional development, market analysis and employer outreach. Our faculty and professional staff includes lawyers with extensive practice experience. Drawing on their expertise, they work to prepare students to realize their professional ambitions. Whether they choose to work in firms across the U.S., work as public interest lawyers or pursue non-traditional legal positions, the CDO is dedicated to helping students meet their career objectives.

Legal clinics provide real-world experience, while doing real-world good.

In our legal clinics, upper-level students have the opportunity to gain hands-on experience managing real cases with real clients. The Nebraska Supreme Court authorizes third-year law students to practice law under the supervision of clinic faculty and staff attorneys. Our clinics can transform law students, clients and the community as we work to provide access to justice.

Milton R. Abrahams Legal Clinic
This clinic focuses on domestic violence and housing law, but will accept novel cases if deemed a good learning opportunity for students. Low-income Douglas County residents are eligible for legal services.

The clinic experience in the third year embodies critical thinking, effective communication and a commitment to community service. Senior certified law students move from the doctrinal setting to the office and the courtroom. The classroom component trains them in a variety of skills necessary for practice, gaining the skills and the confidence to represent and protect clients and their families from physical and emotional harm, from loss of housing and more in a variety of cases.

Juvenile Justice Legal Clinic
The Juvenile Justice Legal Clinic (JJLC) fills a vital need in the Omaha community—dedicated and holistic legal representation for Douglas County youth. Students involved in the clinic enroll in a semester-long class, receive intensive training to advocate effectively for their clients and serve as lead attorneys on a variety of cases. Students are responsible for all aspects of their assigned court cases.

The clinic was opened as a response to a need within the community and as part of Creighton’s social justice mission. A 2019 study by Voices for Children showed there were 52 youths in detention per day who stayed 46 days on average in Nebraska. The same study found that prosecution of felony offenses for juveniles has increased by 142% since 2015. While African Americans represented 12% of the population in Douglas County, they accounted for 55% of people in the juvenile court system. Increasing access to ethical and effective representation is vital to reversing these trends.
Creighton University School of Law enrolls two first-year JD classes (one Accelerated JD program that starts in May and one traditional JD program that starts in August) each year. Applicants to Creighton University School of Law have several options to choose from when applying. Each option has its own requirements and characteristics. “Along with being exposed to some of the finest professors and legal minds in the country, Creighton has instilled in me the passion to be a ‘person for others’ and to work for the betterment of all society. Choosing Creighton has been the best decision I have ever made.”
—Leonardo D. Garingan, JD’21

“There is a genuine concern from the faculty to produce outstanding lawyers, and they are willing to do what it takes to help accomplish that. The open-door policy has been critical to my success.”
—D. Addison Hunter, JD’20
“During my law school career, I was given many opportunities to connect and learn from nationally renowned attorneys and judges. Specifically, Christopher Darden, a prosecutor on the O.J. Simpson case; the former Chair of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Colin Powell; and United States Supreme Court Justice, Clarence Thomas, to name a few. I am glad I chose Creighton because of the connections I have made.”

—Jamel Walker, JD’20
